Shaving the Way to Conquer Kids' Cancer

I am shaving my head to raise money for childhood cancer research. I have never been bald before, so I am a bit nervous about what I will look like. But I am more excited about raising money and helping to make a difference. As a "shavee", I will shave my head to show support — and in the process, inspire friends and family to donate to childhood cancer research. Some cancers almost never strike after the age of 5; others occur most often in teenagers. Even when kids get cancers that adults get—like lymphoma—they must be treated differently.

Thank you for your support,

Jen Reid
